INTERESTING STAGE OF BIG AUTO CONTEST

Vote Schedule Increase for Seven Days Will Benefit Every Subscription Secured.

Increased Vote Schedule for Seven Days.

From now until Wednesday evening, November 1, at 8:30 o'clock the vote schedule will be increased one hundred per cent. or in other words double votes will be given on each subscription, old or new, turned in during this period. There will be no better offer during this contest. Therefore, all candidates, instead of waiting until the closing days of the contest should hustle for subscriptions harder than ever now.

BY T. K. GREER.

As many of the contestants think there will be better extra vote offers at the end of the contest, announcement is now made that there never will be a better offer than the one which is now on and which will continue until Wednesday evening, November 1, at 8:30 o'clock. Announcement was made last week that never during the contest would there be a better offer. To bear out that statement just look at the offer this week and you can easily see that this one, although a good one, does not carry as many extra votes. This week, however, each and every subscription will count and it will not be necessary to have a club in order to get the extra votes.

Under the increase, the schedule of votes for subscriptions will be as follows:

	Price	Old sub. Votes	New sub. Votes
1 year	$ 1.00	5000	10000
2 years	2.00	14000	28000
3 "	3.00	28000	56000
4 "	4.00	40000	80000
5 "	5.00	50000	100000
6 "	6.00	64000	128000
7 "	7.00	80000	160000
8 "	8.00	100000	200000
9 "	9.00	124000	248000
10 "	10.00	150000	300000

DO NOT HOLD SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Once more the request is made that contestants should not hold back subscriptions. Send them to the contest department and send them often as it greatly aids the contest manager. Each subscription must go through a prescribed course. A careful record is kept of each turned in and the votes due on the same are mailed as quickly as possible.

HELP YOUR FAVORITE.

Just at this time it might be well to state that if you are counting on friends to help you out the last week of the contest, you had better see them now and get the promised aid—now when it means so much in the way of extra votes. All subscribers who have not paid a subscription should take this opportunity of attending to the matter and giving the votes to one of the contestants. There is not a candidate in the list but what would appreciate the votes. The best way to see if they will appreciate the favor is to pay your subscription, secure the votes due, from the contest manager, and hand them to the candidate.

START PAPERS ANY TIME.

It may be that when you ask a party for a subscription you are informed that they take another paper. Get them to give you a subscription now and the Republican can be started to them when their other subscription expires. It does not make the least difference when the paper is to be started. Most of the new subscribers want the paper started at once in order that they can see from week to week the progress being made by their favorite candidate.

SUBSCRIPTIONS BEING MISSED.

Not a day goes by but what the contest manager hears of someone who has been overlooked by the contestants. There are hundreds of subscriptions both in and out of town that are being overlooked daily by the candidates for the prizes. There is but one way to find out if you have secured all the subscriptions you can and that is to ask those you have not seen. Asking for subscriptions is what makes the successful contestant and you will find that the winners in this contest will be those who have asked the most people for their aid. No person in the contest should have any hesitancy in asking for a subscription to The Republican. It is not the same as if you were asking for something for nothing, for every dollar anybody gives a contestant the subscriber gets value received in the best weekly newspaper published in Centre county. That may seem like a broad assertion, but all that is required to verify it is to compare The Republican with any other weekly hereabouts.

Below will be found the standing of candidates up until yesterday morning at nine o'clock.

GET "PROSPECTS" NOW.

"I have several prospective subscribers—men and women—who have agreed to assist me with large subscriptions during the last few days of the contest. I know they will for they are my friends; but they prefer to wait until the last minute that they may first determine whether I have a chance."

This is one of the replies invariably given by the contestants when the contest manager inquires how their campaign is running. And upon this—the prospective ballot—and the manner in which the candidate, or her campaign manager, handles the situation, many depend the victory. One "prospect" landed or lost, may decide whether you will be one of the winners or not.

The old adage, "a bird in the hand, etc.," may well be given with variations. It may prove profitable to take advice on this hint: A ballot in the box—a subscription taken—is worth any number promised for the last lap in the race.

CLEVER WORK REWARDED.

From instances of the past we learn best to cope with problems of the present. The following episode best illustrates how votes may be lost by accepting promises for future subscriptions.

One of the leaders in a district secured the promise of a two-year subscription from a relative in a neighboring town. He said he would wait to see what chance she really had of winning. The contestant, confident that the promise of her relative would materialize in the "grand finale—the metaphorical home stretch" in the race for the auto—went home happy. She was one of the many who enumerate their juvenile poultry previous to incubation.

Just three days later another contestant, a lady who was at the foot of the list in another district called upon the former's relative—she was referred to him by one of his business acquaintances, in fact, by one of his best customers in her district. The merchant explained that his niece had entered the race in her district and that he had promised to

SAFE WITH THE PEOPLE.

The remarkable response in public sentiment against the betrayal of County Commissioners Woodring and Zimmerman by certain Democrats who so strongly urged and recommended and pleaded that the Court House be substantially repaired is gratifying to every man who believes in the policy of the square deal. Standing out above all else is the fact that the treachery to these two honest public officials has simply proved beyond any doubt that both are trusted by and therefore safe with the people.

Honest officials who play square with the people may depend upon it that the people may be trusted to play square with them. This sums up the situation in regard to Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman. Upon all sides may be heard words of condemnation of those who asked that the Court House be repaired and who now are conspiring to ruin honest officials who accepted that advice and ordered the repairs made. The people admire honesty in any walk in life, whether it be honesty in the man engaged in private business, or honesty in the official entrusted with the management of public affairs. The great mass of our people are intelligent, thinking men. They want honest men in public office and furthermore they know when their public officials are honest. It is an insult to the intelligence of the people to attempt on the eve of an election to ruin two men whose entire lives are open to the closest scrutiny, whose private and public life is pure and clean and whose only aim has been to do their duty as they saw it, regardless of whether the doing of it might appeal to the galleries.

Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman have not only done their duty in an honest, conscientious manner, but they have done for Centre County a work that will be permanent. The money of the taxpayers which they have spent has been devoted to something which will meet the requirements of many years to come. They have carefully safeguarded and preserved the taxpayers' property, and for the good they have done the people they will be rewarded by the people. They trust the people and the people trust them. Where the people trust an honest official the vilest tongue may lie and slander and its lies and its slanders fall harmlessly by the wayside.

In the midst of all the campaign vilification and abuse keep in mind this undeniable fact: Mr. Woodring and Mr. Zimmerman had a duty to perform. They need not have performed it. They could easily have shirked it. The performing of this duty gave them three years of additional hard work. For all this work which they need not have performed they did not receive one penny of additional salary. They simply saw before them a duty to the people, a duty to you, and as honest, faithful public servants they courageously performed that duty.

Mark another undeniable fact: The Court House repairs involved the handling of numerous contracts and the handling of thousands of dollars. For months past the enemies of these two honest men have been combing the country for something, anything, upon which they might hang even the slightest suspicion of a dollar or a penny dishonestly spent. They have been desperate in their efforts to find something upon which they might cry graft. Nothing has been too bold for them to undertake, nothing too daring for them in their desperation to break down the implicit confidence of the people in two good men. What have they found? Ask yourself, while the air is filled with campaign slander and abuse, what single dishonest act have the enemies of Mr. Woodring and Mr. Zimmerman been able to produce? The answer stands out in a manner which should cut to the quick and cover with shame the politicians who stop at nothing to gain a point. Mr. Woodring and Mr. Zimmerman stand before the people of Centre County with clean hands, with records as honest, faithful, efficient officials and with a clear conscience that they have not only tried to serve all of the people but that their work has been well done.

The more the people learn of the despicable methods now being employed to defeat Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman the greater is their suspicion that from the very beginning it was intended using these two worthy men until the end desired had been accomplished—namely the Court House repairs—and then turning against them when they should come before the people for re-election. In other words, the people are strongly suspecting that Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman were tricked and deceived. The trickery and deceit was not a difficult matter, for both are men of old-fashioned honesty, men who endeavor to see good rather than bad in their fellow-men. As between men of cunning and men of old-fashioned honesty we much prefer, and we are satisfied the great mass of the people greatly perfer, the men of old-fashioned honesty.

As late as a few short months ago the "Centre Democrat," for instance, publicly praised what Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman had done. The "Centre Democrat" publicly characterized the splendid repairs to the Court House as a grand work "secured through progressive citizenship." Contrast these honeyed words with the coarse and brutal vilification of Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman in the "Centre Democrat" since the campaign opened. Now that newspaper, cutting loose from all bonds of decency, of honest criticism of public officials, maliciously attacks Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman for the very work it praised them for but a few short months ago. Add to these attacks the filthy language in the "Democratic Watchman" in its issue of last week. The references in that newspaper to some of the improvements in the Court House are not only unfit to come before the notice of women and children, but carry conviction that nothing can be too vile for use in its political columns. Happily for the good name of Centre County journalism and the refinement of Centre County's womanhood, the filthy utterances in the "Democratic Watchman" come to the attention of a comparatively small number of persons.

Rising above the questionable methods of their enemies Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman stand unscathed and strengthened rather than weakened by the treachery of professed friends. For in all the wicked abuse and shameful criticism the Democratic newspapers are unable to show that the cost of the Court House repairs will add one penny to the taxes of a single citizen. They have been unable to point to one penny dishonestly spent. They dare not say that the work in the Court House has not been well done. Once they say so they will be laughed out of the campaign by all who have visited the building and seen for themselves just what has been done and how well it has been done.

When they undertook the work which for all time to come will stand as a monument to them, Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman placed their future and gave their full confidence and trust into the hands of the people. Being honest, sincere men they knew that so long as they remained honest and true the people would stand by them. They have remained honest and true and the people do trust them. The people will testify to this trust with their ballots on Nov. 7th. Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman are safe with the people. Their enemies are not.

BELIEVE PRISON WILL BE LOCATED HERE

Deal Virtually Closed for Selection of McBride's Gap Site for New Penitentiary.

Unless some unlooked for emergency shall arise to interfere—and this is regarded as extremely improbable—the proposed new State penitentiary and farm prison will be located on what is known as the McBride's gap site, nearby Bellefonte. While formal action closing the matter has not been taken by the Board of Penitentiary Commissioners, it is regarded as reasonably certain that the deal will go through. It is also accepted as equally certain that the proposed street railway from Milesburg to State College will be built at an early date. W. C. Hagan, of Pittsburg, who is promoting that project, stated in Pittsburg last Saturday that the necessary capital for the enterprise would be forthcoming immediately upon the closing of the deal for the penitentiary site. It is proposed putting down the street railway line before actual work on the penitentiary is begun. This will be done to receive the benefit which would naturally result from transporting workmen on the penitentiary to and from their homes.

The Board of Penitentiary Commissioners have tentatively decided to buy the McBride's gap site. On Wednesday of next week the Board, accompanied by Warden John Francies, will again visit Bellefonte for a final inspection of the McBride's gap site, after which a recommendation will be made to Governor Tener. There is every reason to believe that Governor Tener, Warden Francies and the Board of Penitentiary Commissioners look with favor on this site and that the next ten days will witness the closing of the negotiations for its purchase.

At a meeting of the Board of Penitentiary Commissioners held in Pittsburg immediately following their visit to Bellefonte last week, it was tentatively decided to acquire the McBride's gap site. J. Linn Harris, of this place, a member of the State Forestry Commission, was in Pittsburg at the time of the meeting. He was instructed to secure the necessary options on the several farms comprising the McBride's gap site. These were secured on Monday and promptly mailed to Warden Francies, who had them in his possession at another meeting of the Board of Penitentiary Commissioners, held in Pittsburg on Tuesday. Following this meeting Warden Francies stated that the selection of the McBride's gap site had virtually been closed and that he and the Board of Penitentiary Commissioners would come to Bellefonte for a final tour of inspection next Wednesday, arriving here at noon.

The penitentiary site which seems to have won out over others in all parts of the State, comprises approximately 3500 acres. It extends from Peru north to the other side of Spring creek as far as Rock View and then down to a point back of Roopsburg. The farms comprising the site and the acreage of each, follows: Col. W. F. Reynolds, farms, 2600 acres; H. E. Zimmerman farm, 275 acres, John Ishler farm, 190 acres; I. J. Dreese farm, 242 acres; Howard Grove farm, 99 acres. The site also comprises another farm of 100 acres. For the 3500 acres in question the price agreed upon, and which is covered by options, is approximately $200,000.

The news that the McBride's gap site had virtually been accepted was received in Bellefonte with the greatest satisfaction upon the part of business men and others. They view the locating of the mammoth prison nearby here and the building of a street railway line to State College, together with the proposed enlarging of the State fish hatchery at Pleasant Gap as foreshadowing for Bellefonte an era of expansion and prosperity that seldom comes to a town of this size. They believe that it means not only an increase in population of 1000 or more, but the building of hundreds of additional homes and, of course, a corresponding growth in business for the community. In this respect the advantage is not only permanent but one which will increase in the years to come.

Assuming that the McBride's gap is finally purchased, it is believed that the actual work of building will be begun next summer. The plans are of such magnitude that it will require probably from five to ten years in which to complete the work. The State has appropriated $1,300,000 with which to buy the land for the new prison site and put the work of building under way. Of this amount but $300,000 is available this year. The remaining $1,000,000 becomes available next year. The Legislature which convenes in January, 1913, is expected to make an additional appropriation of several millions of dollars to advance the work, and succeeding Legislatures are looked to for appropriations as may be necessary to bring the plans to completion.

HORSE BADLY INJURED

Rears and Falls Upon End of Shaft Cutting Gaping Wound in Shoulder.

A horse belonging to Albert Thompson, the local liveryman, was painfully injured on Monday afternoon, and while many persons at first thought it would bleed to death the animal now seems to be on the way to recovery. While hitched to a spring wagon, nearby the Pennsylvania Railroad passenger station, the horse frightened at some steam escaping in the middle of the road, and reared and then fell. One of the shafts pierced the horse in the right shoulder, cutting a gap wound eight inches deep. When the shaft was removed from the horse's body the blood poured out in a stream and it was feared that the animal would bleed to death.

As quickly as could be done with safety the horse was removed to the Palace livery. Dr. Nissely, the veterinarian, happened to be up in the vicinity of Waddle at the time, and an automobile was sent after him with instructions to the chauffer to lose no time in making the trip. Dr. David Dale happened along and volunteered to do what he could to check the flow of blood until Dr. Nissely might arrive. This was done by stuffing a towel into the wound, the several arteries being too far inside to be sewed. When Dr. Nissely arrived he checked the bleeding by means of powerful stringents and on Tuesday the horse was removed to the Thompson barn. Dr. Nissely is quite confident the horse will soon be all right.

Burned by Scalding Lard.

Charles W. Hunter, a butcher and member of the firm of Hunter & Hunter, of Beech Creek, was painfully scalded while rendering lard in his shop on Friday of last week. He was engaged in dipping the hot lard out of a kettle into buckets and the dipper with a double bottom suddenly exploded. The scalding lard was thrown in all directions, some of it landing on Mr. Hunter's head, face and arms. It is supposed that the bottom of the dipper contained a leak and that some water got between the two bottoms, which when heated was converted into steam and thus caused the explosion.

Accident to Hand Car.

Several miners employed by the Pennsylvania Fire Brick Company, near Beech Creek, had a narrow escape from death while coasting down the mountain on a hand car on Friday evening of last week. The men were returning from work at the time. The car was spinning along at a lively clip when one of the wheels suddenly flew off. All of the occupants of the car were thrown off and one of the number, Elliott Gardner, was hurled down an embankment a distance of about fifteen feet, landing in a bunch of briars. He was badly bruised and scratched.

A Mammoth Pumpkin.

C. A. Williams, of Blanchard, this year raised a sweet pumpkin which is the largest we have heard of up to this time and which if converted into good, old-fashioned pumpkin pies would feed a small army. The pumpkin is six feet, five inches in circumference and weighs seventy-five pounds, six ounces. One might call at the Williams home almost any day during the next month or two and be reasonably certain of finding a fine, big piece of luscious pumpkin pie.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Bellefonte Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Bellefonte. Follow the advice of a Bellefonte citizen and be cured yourself.

William E. Haines, Sunny Side St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "The public statement that I gave in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago still holds good, as the cure they effected in my case has been permanent. In 1890 began to suffer from a lameness in my back, accompanied by a dull, lingering ache in my loins that made it hard for me to attend to my work. I did not rest well and I was at a loss to know what to do. After trying a number of remedies without being benefited, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box. They proved to be just the remedy I required removing my trouble in a short time. I have been fully convinced of the curative powers of this preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 25 years.

A Hint to the Wise.

It is not too soon to begin making your Christmas gifts, the little personal offerings that one makes by hand.

In the art departments of the big shops there is a surprising variety of attractive stamped and made up trifles that require only a little handwork to convert them into suitable gifts. The present is a good moment to make a wise choice of these.

There are two items included under the fancy work head which seem to please women and which there is little danger of duplicating, and these are fancy aprons and bags. Any one who has the time and can crochet well can make up any number of smart bags, ranging from the exquisite ones of fine Irish lace suitable for evening use to larger ones of heavy knotted twine lined with colored silk and useful for sewing or many home purposes.

The chafing dish apron, ruffled and of sheer material, with tiny bib, is as becoming a garment as a woman can wear, and it appeals to a man's heart as quickly as any results in cooking to which it may have contributed. Every busy housewife likes little round aprons of embroidery or dotted swiss to protect the front of her dress, and sewing aprons with pockets to hold the work are always appreciated. A new model of this sort is made of rather heavy linen cut round and with a scalloped embroidered edge. A second apron is stitched on over this and forms the pocket for the work. A ribbon belt matches the color of the embroidery.

The little schoolgirl in her early teens is apt to have very ambitious ideas as to the amount of Christmas gifts she is to give and generally finds it hard to complete them. This is the moment to give her some good advice. If she cannot be dissuaded from making a burden of Christmas, as her elders have done, let her have recource to the partly finished articles mentioned above. Here a little labor will go a long way, and the little maid's nerves will not be racked by the hopelessness of finishing her self imposed tasks.

Any skin itching is a temper-tester. The more you scratch the worse it itches. Doan's Ointment cures piles, eczema—any skin itching. At all drug stores.

Good Things to Eat.

Pare four round apples, core, fill with sugar, little butter and one radish. Put in baking dish, add hot water until apples are half covered, sprinkle well with sugar, and bake until soft. Serve in ice cream glasses, with own juice.

Scrambled Eggs and Tomatoes—Add stewed tomatoes and a minced green pepper to the scrambled eggs, and cook them slowly, lifting them as usual during the process. A few mushrooms cooked with a small piece of onion in butter before the eggs go in are an improvement and turn an ordinary dish into something quite aristocratic.

Browned Round Steak—Buy the juicy cut of round steak. Put it through the meat chopper. Place one-half of it on the wirerack, pressing down well and keeping sides and ends even. Salt and pepper to taste, then prepare a dressing as for poultry, adding a trifle of the chopped meat. Place this on top and then cover with the other half of meat. Press down so that it will slice nicely. Season and sprinkle with a little chopped suet. Put in a deep pie plate, covering with another, and bake until richly brown.

"I have been somewhat costive, but Doan's Regulets gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

Plant Bulbs Now.

Many gardeners claim they have better success with sweet peas that are sown in the autumn. The usual time is in March which is safe for the novice, but the more experienced gardener will find it interesting to experiment with both times of sowing.

Things should go in early enough to be established before frost. Bulbs and lilies will stand much later planting. Many of the lilies indeed are not imported until late November. When late planting is to be done keep the ground workable by covering with manure to prevent hard freezing.

Peonies should go in the ground in September. They are easy to grow, absolutely hardy, have no diseases or insect pests and increase in beauty each year, often living a generation. Put the roots in a deep rich soil, in a sunny position, though they do well in partial shade. Do not plant too deep. The crowns should be covered with two inches of soil. Give plenty of water in the growing season and doses of liquid manure every ten days during the same period.

Irises like a light, rich soil, and do best in a moist soil by the water. Planted in clumps or as hedges, the German iris, or common "flag" is effective. The Japanese iris likes plenty of sunlight, but many varieties do well in partial shades.

Hardy lilies, properly chosen, bloom most of the summer. Lilium candidum or the June lily, should be planted in full sunlight. Other lilies are not planted until late October.

A Useful Millinery Hint.

When a separate loop of wire is inserted in a hat bow it often has an extremely annoying habit of asserting its presence by poking out. A stitch is not always advisable, as it may spoil the appearance of the bow.

Here is quite a good dodge when dealing with piece silk. The loops are made the required width from a strip cut on the straight. The selvage is on one side, and the other is hemmed. Into the hem a round millinery wire is pushed before making up the loop and it gives the bow a smart, perky, upstanding appearance, keeping it exactly in the right place.

Bows wired in this way are most valuable when motor veils are worn, as they come up smiling after the crushing inevitably sustained. Through you might not think it, the bow looks smarter if the side that is hemmed (what one would naturally call the wrong side) is used for the front. It looks like a strapping slipped off, and the wire acts is a kind of piping.

Black and White Continues.

There is no opening at which one fails to see the most distinguished effects in black and white. Evidently this constantly recurring combination last season did not dampen the enthusiasm for it. It was officially rumored that it would pass away with the coronation in England, as it bought into fashion with the death of the King; but the whole world might be in mourning to judge by the showing of these two colors.

One finds it in coat suits, in separate blouses, in dinner and ball gowns and in wraps. There is one evening cloak in black Chinese crepe that is immensely effective. It is excessively broad and loose above the waist and then closed around the figure at hips and knees. It is cut to a point at back, has pointed sleeves cut in one with the fronts, and is draped with a long cape at the back cut in two points. Every inch of all edges is outlined with four inch black silk fringe. The lining as of white satin.

Dyspepsia is our national ailment. Burdock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

New Ideas in Negliges.

Fashion's latest decree is to use two thicknesses of messaline or thin silk, white for the outside and a delicate color underneath. They are separately made and are only caught together at the hems.

They are elusive in their shadings and are trimmed with five ruffles of five-inch footing. The neck is pointed in the front and the back. The sleeves are rather loose and ruffled from the elbow to the shoulder with the footing. From the point at the back of the neck there is a square bow of the silk edged with footing. Leaf green under white makes an exquisite combination.

Economy.

"When I got back from my vacation my husband had only one soiled dish for me to wash."

"He washed the other, eh?"

"It seems he only used one dish."

Pennsylvania Germans.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Pennsylvania German society ended its session at Harrisburg last Friday with a banquet at which addresses were made by ex-Attorney General W. U. Hensel, Lancaster; secretary of internal affairs Henry Houck, Lebanon; State Superintendent of Public instructor N. C. Schaeffer, Lancaster, and Postmaster E. J. Stackpole and Theodore B. Klein, president of the Dauphin County Historical society, Harrisburg. James M. Lamberton was toastmaster.

At the afternoon session Dr. Schaeffer spoke on the work of Pennsylvania Germans for the advancement of the state, especially that of Governor George Wolf, in founding the state school system through his approval of the school act of 1834. Other speakers were: Professor H. H. Reichard, of State College, and Dr. D. W. Nead, of Buffalo. The new president H. M. M. Richards, of Lebanon, delivered an address at the closing session.

Easy to Keep Butter Cool.

A convenient and easy way to keep butter cool as by supplying the principle of cool is by evaporation, as used in the wet bulb of the wet and dry bulb hygrometer. The butter is placed in a closed receptacle (butter dish with lid), and after this has been placed in a soup plate containing water a wet cloth is put over the dish, with its ends in the water.

Evaporation goes on at the surface of the cloth from the plate below. This keeps the cloth and dish inside at a few degrees below the atmospheric temperature, and by this means butter can be kept firm in the hottest days.

Getting His Ring.

After receiving a favorable reply from the girl's father, the happy young man hurried to a telephone to call up a jewelry store.

As soon as "central" answered the youth excitedly explained:

"Please give me 229 Main."

"Central" inquired:

"How many rings, please?"

In his confusion the young man blurted the reply:

"Only one, a solitaire."

An English Joke.

Frills and Fashion.

Fringe is so popular that it even appears upon hats.

Indoor dresses, especially for afternoon wear, have slight trains.

To have the correct figure, women must appear to be uncorseted.

Trimmings of puffs and scallops on many dresses suggest the early Victorian style.

All hair dressing must be low and flat. Pompadours are entirely out of the question.

For indoor gowns crepe de chine and crepe meteor hold their own. They cling so well to the figure that every woman who has a good figure clings to them.

In nearly all the new suits the favorite trimming is braid, especially the wide braid.

Ever See White Squirrel?

Residents of Westerleigh, a residential section of West Brighton, S. I., are getting up early these mornings to go out into the grove beyond Wardwell avenue to see the most remarkable of Staten Island's nature freaks.

Every morning, according to Claude Isabelle, of Wardwell avenue, a snow white squirrel comes down from the grove on the hill and goes from tree to tree and across lawns looking for his breakfast. Isabelle has a witness, Irving Crocheron, one of the oldest residents, who wouldn't believe the story till he saw the squirrel himself. Traps are being set to catch this albino that he may be sent to the Bronx Zoological Park.

Under Bond to Stop Kissing.

Because John O'Donnell, a Chicago bookkeeper, tried to kiss the sweetheart of Walter P. Rowan, Judge Newcomer bound O'Donnell over to keep the peace under bond of $500.

"Did you kiss Rowan's girl? asked the court of O'Donnell.

"I did, your Honor," responded O'Donnell, "but she was willing, and there was nothing to it."

"There is something to it, O'Donnell," replied the court, "when one fellow kisses another fellow's girl, and when you take this liberty you must also take the consequences. I will free you of the charge of disorderly conduct, but will have to place you under bond of $500 to keep the peace."

Her Puffs Shown on Train.

Charging she was routed out of her berth and was compelled to march barefooted and clad only in a gossamer gown into another sleeping car in the presence of many men passengers, Mrs. Mary Barnhill, prominent in Atlanta society, filed suit against the Pullman Company for $10,000 damages. Mrs. Barnhill alleged the conductor refused to give her time to dress. She says after her transfer to the other car she discovered that articles of artificial hair, known as "rat," switches and puffs, had been left in the berth. She declares that when the conductor brought her these articles he exhibited them to the passengers, much to her mortification.

A Great Advantage to Working Men.

J. A. Maple, 125, 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures so I began taking them and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me and to one of my business, expressman, that alone is a great advantage. My kidneys acted free and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

He Was 108 Years Old.

George, Nicholas, Louis and Charles Miles, the Altoona confectioners, have received word of the death of their father in Sparta, Greece, at the age of 108 years. The deceased saw service for his country in 1821 and had engaged in agriculture since. Besides the local children, there are two sons in Greece and a daughter in New York.

What He Had.

"Did you try to comfort that friend who sent word that he was in great distress?"

"No," redlied the chilly philosopher, "I didn't try to say anything. It wasn't a case of mere loss of friends or fortune. This fellow had a toothache."

Foey's Kidney Remedy (Liquid.)

Is a great medicine of proven value for both acute and chronic kidney and bladder ailments. It is especially recommended to elderly people for its wonderful tonic and reconstructive qualities, and the permanent relief and comfort it gives them. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR BACKACHE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

FOLEY'S ORINO LAXATIVE
FOR STOMACH TROUBLE and CONSTIPATION

An Early Airship.

We are told by Peter Farley, who wrote as an eyewitness, that in August, 1835, the airship Eagle was officially advertised to sail from London with government dispatches and passengers for Paris and to establish direct communication between the capitals of Europe. This early type of airship was 160 feet long, fifty feet high and forty feet wide, and she lay in the dockyard of the Aeronautical society in Victoria road, near Kensington gardens, then quite a rural spot. Built to hold an abundant supply of gas, she was covered with oiled lawn and carried a frame seventy-five feet long and seven feet high, with a cabin secured by ropes to the balloon. An immense rudder and wings or fins on each side for purposes of propulsion completed her fittings. The deck was guarded by netting. After all this preparation and advertisement the Eagle never got beyond Victoria road, for Count Lennox and his assistants failed to provide the necessary motive power.—London Standard.

Carrying a Stretcher.

The bearers of a stretcher should be as near the same height as possible. If there is any difference the taller and stronger man should be at the head. A stretcher should be carried by the hands or suspended by straps from the shoulders. Never carry a stretcher when loaded upon the shoulders. It frightens the patient, and he might fall off very easily, especially if one of the bearers should stumble. The bearers should not keep step, but break step, the one in front starting off with his right foot and the one behind with his left. The injured should be carried feet first. In going up a hill or upstairs the head should be in front and the reverse in descending, except in case of a broken thigh or leg, when the feet should be first in going up and last in coming down to keep the weight of the body off the injured limb.—"First Aid to the Injured." Dr. H. H. Hartung, in National Magazine.

Coming In Out of the Wet.

There is an amusing story by Athenaeus which suggests the possible origin of the phrase "He does not know enough to come in out of the wet." According to the entertaining grammarian referred to, a town in Greece under stress of evil circumstances borrowed money from a rich man, who took as security for the loan a mortgage on the handsome portico which surrounded the market place. He was not an ungenerous creditor, for when it rained he caused the town criers to announce that the citizens had permission to take refuge under the colonnade. Strangers visiting the town who failed to have the matter properly explained to them were so impressed by the extraordinary circumstances that they spread abroad the report that the people were so stupid that they had to be told when to come in out of the wet.

When a Dog Chokes.

Dogs frequently choke. A bone, a nail or a piece of tin gets in the throat, and there is great danger of death before the arrival of the surgeon. Many of them do die, but there is no reason for this, for it is easy, without the slightest danger of getting bitten, to put the hand in the mouth of a dog and to draw out or push down the obstruction that is choking it. A bandage—a handkerchief or towel will do—is passed between the teeth and over the upper jaw, and in a similar way another bandage is passed between the teeth and over the under jaw. One person, holding the ends of these two bandages, keeps the dog's mouth wide open. A second person can then with perfect ease and safety put his fingers down the animal's throat and relieve it.

A Snake Story.

This story is told of the late Dr. Emil Reich. One day when traveling he lay down to rest in the shadow of a bush and fell asleep. He awoke with a start to find that night was coming on and that rain had begun to fall. Quickly snatching up his umbrella, he tried to open it and, finding it worked stiffly, he pressed the spring vigorously. Suddenly there was a sound of ripping and rearing and a snake fell to the ground split in two. The reptile had apparently swallowed the umbrella as far as it could.

Original Era of Good Feeling.

The phrase applied to the administration of James Monroe, "the era of good feeling," first appeared in a Boston newspaper, the Columbian Sentinel of July 10, 1817. From that time until the present hour the two administrations of Monroe—a period of eight years, 1717 to 1825—are referred to in the terms of the newspaper paragraph which so aptly expressed the public sentiment of the day.—Magazine of American History.

Equivocal.

Cholly Softboy—I suppose I looked veway angwy at the zoo today when that nawsty Dick Dandy said when I stood by the big monkey's cage how much I was like it. Candid Friend—You certainly looked beside yourself.—Exchange.

The Lesson.

He—Yes, it's very true, a man doesn't learn what happiness is until he's married. She—I'm glad you've discovered that at last. He—Yes, and when he's married it's too late.—Dorfbarbier.

No Sympathy.

"Here, waiter, there's a fly in my soup."

"Serves the brute right. He's been buzzin' round here all the mornin'."—Life.

Life is no dream, but life is nothing without its great dreams.

Masks of the Marquesans.

The Marquesans of a generation ago were the most completely and artistically tattooed people in the Pacific, and the practice of tattooing is carried on among them to a certain extent today. The really fine pieces of work, however, such as the famous right leg of the late Queen Vaekehu of Nukahiva, are confined entirely to the very old, and, what with wrinkles, deformities and the wear and tear of time, these have lost most of their original sharpness of color and outline. None of the new generation appears to have the fortitude to endure the exquisite pain incident to having a whole limb picked out in a lacework of geometric design or the face barred and circled like a coarse spider's web. Women are rarely tattooed at all now, and most of the young men are satisfied with a broad band of solid black, not unlike a highwayman's mask, which reaches across the face from ear to ear, giving to their never overmild looking countenances an expression of amazing ferocity.—Lewis R. Freeman in New York Tribune.

His Long Suit.

He had written essays critical and digests analytical. His articles political were very widely read. He'd produced some tales of mystery, of travel, love and history; his scientific treatises light o'er the land had shed. He wrote about photography, geography, stenography; he'd finished a biography of some distinguished man. His views upon geometry and mystic trigonometry were everywhere declared to be on the progressive plan. His tracts on modern sciences, mechanical appliances, hydraulics, steam and railroads were indulgently received. His writings on morality were of superior quality—were publicly commended, if they weren't quite believed. His verses so poetical, abstruse and theoretical, delighted those who patronize the poets as a fad, but the manuscript he thought the best, the one that money brought the best, was just a simple, wisely worded, big newspaper ad.!—Newspaperdom.

Little Boy Grizzly.

Enos A. Mills, writing of his adventures with a pet bear known as Little Boy Grizzly, says: "He and I had a few foot races, and usually, in order to give me a better chance, we ran downhill. In a 200 yard dash he usually paused three or four times and waited for me to catch up, and I was not a slow biped either. The grizzly, though apparently awkward and lumberly, is one of the most agile of beasts. I constantly marveled at Grizzly's lightness of touch or the deftness of movement of his forepaws. With but one claw touching it he could slide a coin back and forth on the floor more rapidly and lightly than I could. He would slide an eggshell swiftly along without breaking it. Yet by using one paw he would without effort overturn rocks that were heavier than himself."—Suburban Life.

Postal Clerks' Pay In Russia.

The remuneration of postal clerks in Russia includes emoluments which do not appear in the form of money. They are furnished quarters, heat and light, and in addition allowances for uniforms as well as medical attendance and medicine for themselves and their families. In cities like Moscow a large hospital is maintained for the convenience of postal clerks and carriers. Their children are admitted to the schools free of charge, which in Russia is quite an item of expense, especially in preparatory schools for colleges, to which the children of the titled and the wealthy only are admitted. The pay of clerks and carriers ranges from $12.50 to $18 per month. They may moreover, receive gratuities from those to whom they deliver mail.

Police Methods In Berlin.

Berlin is the most strictly governed city in the world, and a stranger will be continually violating the ordinances and regulations without being conscious of his offenses. But the penalties are not severe, and the policeman who arrests you is prepared to impose the fine on the spot instead of calling a patrol wagon and taking you to the police station. You pay him a few marks, for which he gives you a receipt, and within twenty-four hours you must appear before the captain in charge of that precinct and turn in the receipt as a check upon the policeman who has arrested you.

An Alternative.

"Now, then," said the professor of logic, "give us an idea of your knowledge of the question in plain words."

"Why—er—I'm afraid," stammered the student, "that I can't just exactly"—

"Perhaps, then, you may give us an idea of your ignorance of it in any old words."—Philadelphia Press.

He Explains.

"Why do they call Washington the city of magnificent distances?"

"Because," answered the office seeker, "it is such a long way between what you go after and what you get."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Sandy and the Glass.

Tourist (referring to the barometer)—I see the glass is going up again, Sandy. Sandy—Dae ye tell me that? A body will soon no' be able to afford a dram at all!—Dundee Advertiser.

Nothing New.

Wife—Don't you like my new hat, dearest? Husband—Yes-s, it's all right. Wife—Well, I bought it on your account, dear. Husband—Yes, you usually do!

One bad example spoils a good many excellent precepts.

Tsar and Czar.

Frequently the inquiry is made as to why the spelling tsar, to designate the emperor of all the Russias, should be preferred to czar. The most natural and obvious answer is that the spelling indicates the Russian pronunciation of the word, which czar does not. The title comes from an old Slavonic word, which some authorities are agreed is not derived from the Latin caesar, but there are authorities who hold that its ultimate derivation is from the Roman. The origin of the common spelling is supposed to be the writings of Herberstein, about 1550. The letter "c" in Roman-Slavonic has the sound of "ts." The letter was copied, but the sound was not. The letter "z" never belonged in the word. The spelling czar is now regarded by many as old fashioned. With some Germans the spelling is zar, which is pronounced tsar. Many of the French have adopted tsar as the spelling, and that form is increasing in English. The London Times, a most careful authority, employs it, and so does the Encyclopedia Britannica in its supplementary volumes.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Green Constable.

A new constable on duty in a provincial town handed to a sergeant a shilling which he said he had found. The man with the three stripes told him he was quite right in acting as he had done. Proceeding on his round, the sergeant met a brother sergeant and, with a grin, told him the tale of the shilling. They both agreed the new recruit was very green, and at the conclusion of their duties they went to the nearest inn, and the possessor of the coin called for two drinks. On receiving them he threw down the shilling to pay for them, but the landlord refused it, saying it was a bad one. The sergeant, notoriously mean, had to supply the requisite amount out of his own pocket and also to put up with the laugh against himself. On his telling the constable his find was a bad one the man answered: "Yes, of course it was. Do you think I would have been silly enough to give it to you if it hadn't been?"—Pearson's.

An Honor to Allison.

"Do you know," inquired Wilbur Reaser, the New York portrait painter, "that when my painting of Senator Allison was hung in the lobby of the senate the precedent of forty years was broken?"

Surprise being expressed, Mr. Reaser explained:

"It is a fact that since the beginning of constitutional government the senate had bought only nine portraits for the lobby. The first was Washington's and the eighth was Charles Sumner's. For almost forty years nobody was considered worthy to follow in the distinguished line. It was generally thought that no other portrait would ever be added to the group, but when Senator Allison died, after serving longer in the senate than any other man in the history of the government, the rule was broken, and his picture became the ninth."—Washington Times.

German Bureaucracy.

A good story is going the rounds of the French newspapers illustrating the beauties of bureaucratic government in Germany. We are told that in the postoffice department if a clerk wishes a new pencil he has to hand in the stump of the one that has become too short to work with. In the particular instance cited a clerk received his new pencil without returning the end. Before the omission was discovered the clerk was transferred to another office. Just after he had commenced his duties at his new post he received an official intimation that he had neglected to hand in his pencil end. By this time it had disappeared, but to prevent bother the clerk purchased a new pencil, cut off a piece about the length of the missing bit and dispatched it to the stationery department.

Criticising Dad.

"An old man in Missouri tried to commit suicide by hanging himself with a blind bridle," said Champ Clark. "His son cut him down just in time.

"When the son cut him down and brought him to the old man complained feebly:

"'It ain't right, Henry; you've kept your old father out of heaven.'

"'You'd cut a fine figure in heaven looking through a blind bridle, wouldn't you?' retorted the son."

Deceitful Man.

"Didn't you think that was a beautiful girl with me today, Arthur?"

"What girl, my dearest?"

"Why, she was with me when you met us in front of the church."

"Was there a girl there, dear? I didn't notice. I was looking at you."

And then she loved him all the more.

She Agreed.

Spinks—What made him so mad?

Winks—He told his wife she had no judgment, and she just looked him over critically from head to foot and said she was beginning to realize it.

Knows Better Now.

Teacher—Tommy, you should have known better than to fight with that Williams boy. Tommy—I know, ma'am, but I thought I could lick him.—Hearth and Home.

Gave Her Proof.

"Do you believe, sir, that the dead ever walk after death?"

"No doubt of it, ma'am. I have heard the dead march."

It is a misfortune to have to maneuver one's heart as a general maneuvers his army.—Alexander Smith.

Proposed amendments to the Constitution submitted to the citizens of this Commonwealth for their approval or rejection, by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and published by order of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of Article XVIII of the Constitution.

Number One.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

Number Two.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted: Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.

IN 2909.

Judge Smooth invites the Board of Centre County Commissioners to his home and, reinforced by members of the bar and others, eloquently points out the urgent need of certain repairs to the Court House.

Judge Smooth—We'll stand by you to a man if you repair the Court House.

Board of Commissioners—Not on your life. That's what was said to another Board 'way back in 1909. Let the old Court House fall in. It only belongs to the people, anyhow.

A vote for the straight Republican ticket on Nov. 7th. will be a vote against political bossism in Centre County.

Harry Diehl stands for a square deal. Dave Foreman stands for machine methods in Centre County politics.

Dan Grove, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, sends out west for his cattle. Why not buy from Centre County farmers?

Better elect as public officials in Centre County the men who will be responsible to you rather than the personally slated candidates of the Democratic bosses.

In its clumsy attacks on Ed. Williams, Republican candidate for Register, the "Centre Democrat" suggests a one-legged man pitching hay with a toothpick.

One plausible explanation of the bitterness of the Democratic bosses toward Woodring and Zimmerman is that they are jealous because the money was honestly spent.

George Yarnell, the Republican candidate for Sheriff is a friend of the old soldier. He never branded the Grand Army button as the "badge of government paupers."

Despite the brazen lies in the "Centre Democrat" and the "Democratic Watchman," the fact remains that the repairs to the Court House will not cause one penny of increase in your taxes. Notice the silence of the Democratic organs on this all-important point?

He has been a "narrow, bigoted, offensive partisan from the day he was old enough to take sides in politics," remarks the "Democratic Watchman" in speaking of one of the Republican candidates. On the level, now, doesn't that accurately describe the editor of the "Democratic Watchman?"

If a few unscrupulous bosses are daring enough to stack the cards against faithful men in their own party in order to put through a personally selected ticket, will not these same bosses be daring enough to stack the cards against the public's interests after election day? Keep in mind the fact that political machine bosses are working for their pocket-books and not for your interests.

ONE LAWYER AND A HALF.

Wouldn't it be a fine howdydo to elect as our District Attorney a man who when a case would be carried to the higher courts would be qualified to travel only as far as the front door and at that point be compelled to meekly announce:

"I now retire in favor of Centre County's legal representative?"

Instead of having Centre County represented in the Supreme Court by two men, constituting one lawyer and a half, why not save additional expense on every case by electing one man who is a real lawyer? You can do this by electing Mr. Furst.

The surest way to break up the "Keep it between us" game of Foreman and Kimport is to elect Harry Diehl.

Most men are content with one or two terms in the Court House. Dave Foreman wants to hold on there forever.

The elimination of "Secretary" Meek from politics seems to be as complete as if it had been done by Republicans.

A vote for the Republican ticket on Nov. 7th. will be a vote resenting the slander that brave old soldiers are government paupers.

The only possible explanation to Dave Foreman's scheme to spend his entire life on the public payroll is that he considers the taxpayers easy marks.

Four out of every five who criticise the Court House repairs for political purposes take pride in pointing out the remodeled Court House to persons visiting Bellefonte.

If a certain financial institution doesn't want its sanity questioned it will bind and gag the little boy banker who writes the funny financial figures in the "Democratic Watchman."

Just because the editor of the "Democratic Watchman" has been kicked out at Harrisburg and ignored at home, all is not lost. The Socialist party is looking for well qualified recruits.

Political bosses who cheat the people at the primaries will cheat the people after the election. The one way for the people to prevent this is to defeat the candidates put up by the bosses.

So long as the firm of Kimport, Foreman & Co. own the Prothonotary's office capable and ambitious young Democrats in Centre County might just as well abandon all hope of receiving recognition.

By the way, we haven't heard the "Democratic Watchman" express itself of late on the traitorous Keystone Democrats in Centre County. Will Jim Cornelly kindly explain this strange silence on the part of his newspaper.

Every taxpayer in Centre County may rest assured that the County books will be honestly audited by Messrs. Goss and Gramley, who are candidates for County Auditor. A vote for them will be a vote for two worthy, honest and capable men.

What shady scheme have the Democratic bosses up their sleeves to prompt them to such desperate efforts to elect their personally selected group of candidates? When political bosses become so anxious to put into office their favorite candidates it is a pretty good time for the people to look out for themselves.

Your vote on Nov. 7th. will aid in determining whether Centre County is to be governed during the next four years by honest and efficient Republican officials or by a little clique of men selected by the Democratic bosses for reasons best known to themselves. Remember that the officials elected this year serve for four years.

George Yarnell, Republican nominee for sheriff, has the highest respect for the boys who wore the blue in defense of the flag. This explains why the "Democratic Watchman" is so bitterly opposed to Yarnell and so deeply interested in the election of Lee. Mr. Yarnell is not the type of man who would insult the old soldier by calling him a government pauper.

Johnny Miller is already planning to become a candidate next term in the event of his defeat this year for County Treasurer. Johnny's weakness as a candidate is probably due to the fact that he has been before the people so many times that they have taken his measure. Apparently they each time decided that he didn't require a very large suit.

The "Democratic Watchman's" little boy banker is in immediate danger of being kidnapped by J. Pierpont Morgan. The mystery is how J. P. could have failed to take notice up to this time.

"Secretary of the Democratic State Committee P. Gray Meek said," etc., is a missing line these days in the Harrisburg news despatches. Judging by results, it apparently made no difference to the Democrats in the State what "Secretary" P. Gray Meek really did say.

Noll and Grove make thousands of dollars a year in their private business. As County Commissioners they would receive $1000 a year. Which would they neglect? Their interests, paying them thousands of dollars a year, or your interests, which would pay them only $1000 a year? Elect Woodring and Zimmerman and they will devote all of their time to attending to your interests.

Every man who had a hand in persuading the Board of Commissioners to repair the Court House and who now is betraying Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman will find his treachery rise up to haunt him in the years to come. For one in particular the day of reckoning is not far off. The more lofty one's position the greater his moral responsibility and, just incidentally, the greater will be the fall.

To be perfectly frank about it, is it honorable in any man who has a fat bank account to plead poverty as a scheme to catch smypathy votes? This plea of poverty is not borne out by the records of the bucketshops. Rather than waste your sympathy, be on the safe side by making sure YOUR deed will be properly recorded and YOUR heirs thus saved needless trouble and costly litigation. The one sure way to do this is to re-elect Recorder William H. Brown.

Of course, if it is immaterial what kind of a lawyer is needed in that office it would not be so important that the people elect James C. Furst as their District Attorney. Paul Fortney's election as District Attorney would mean additional expense to the taxpayers every time a case would be carried to the Supreme Court. For Fortney isn't qualified to practice in the Supreme Court and he would be compelled to hire a lawyer to represent him in each case. In this instance it would mean a fat fee charged up to the taxpayers. Save this additional and unnecessary expense by electing Mr. Furst, who is qualified to practice in not only the lower but also the higher courts.

As a plain business proposition, if Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman are defeated because they repaired and thus preserved your property, do you believe it will be possible to elect a Board of Commissioners in the next century with sufficient courage to make any needed and necessary repairs? What public officials will be willing to do their duty in this respect and suffer slander and abuse when they know that by simply shifting a duty upon their successors they can have an easy time while in office and be exempt from criticism? If you want to establish a policy of encouraging weak-kneed men only to seek election as county officials the surest way to do this will be to defeat Woodring and Zimmerman. If you believe that public officials should do their duty and thereby save and preserve your property, you owe it to yourself to vote for the re-election of Woodring and Zimmerman. This is the situation in a nutshell. The decision rests solely in your hands. What are you going to do about it?

On Friday evening last, about 8 o'clock a white girl baby, probadly a week old, snugly ensconced in a basket, with a bottle of milk and other paraphernalia, was deposited on the front door step at the home of Mrs. Margaret Champ, a well known colored lady residing on Pine street. The babe was taken in and cared for over night by Mrs. Champ, and on Saturday morning H. C. Warfel, one of the overseers of the poor, arranged with Mrs. Walter Holling, of North Philipsburg, to take the homeless child for the time being at least. No clue as to the mother of the babe has yet been found.—Philipsburg Journal.

CONTEST WARMING UP.

assist her with a subscription. And this was the artful campaigner's reply:

"Now, you know, Mr. X, that your niece is the leader in her district. I believe she is the most popular girl in the neighborhood. Everywhere I go I find people who are looking out for her interests.

"In my opinion no other candidate can win. But I am in another district. It is possible for me to win a prize. All I need is a good start, and then my friends, realizing that I have a chance to win, will rally to my support. Mr. S., your customer, told me he was sure you would help me."

In the parlance of the street, Mr. X "fell for the spiel." Surely, he thought his niece would not need 14,000 votes. 5,000 would be enough, for she would win anyway, and by giving this young lady a one-year subscription he might make more solid the friendship of his customer in the city.

Who knows? The one who is now leading in a district may lose in the long run—may be prevented from enjoying the pleasure of winning, and all because she believed she could depend on a prospect. No one can be absolutely certain of victory. They may need just the 5,000 votes lost by failing to get them now.

Mr. Fortney Makes Statement

To the voters of the Borough of Bellefonte:

As I am informed, it is alleged and industriously circulated that all the books bought for the use of the schools are bought from the American Book Company, and it is so done because I insist it shall be. Nothing is farther from the truth. If the person or persons who make the charges desired to find the truth, and then tell it they could have done so by making inquiry of Professor Wagner or Mr. W. H. Crissman, Secretary of the Board, or of the Borough Auditor.

For the year 1910 and 1911 the order book as well as other books will show that the American Book Company was paid

For books	$252.84
Ginn & Co	$266.26
D. C. Heath & Co	$111.00
Chas. E. Merrill	$80.99

To a number of other houses smaller amounts for books on special lines.

For the 1911 and 1912, this year we are now in:

Ginn & Co	$304.19
American Book Co.	$229.50
D. C. Heath & Co	$55.92

Smaller amounts to the other houses who deal in certain lines of books.

These figures are taken from the record of the board and are absolutely correct, and are a fair average of the amount paid the leading publishing houses from year to year. No director orders books nor does he adopt the books. One of the regular committees of the board is a committee on text books. What it does, after careful investigation and consultation with the Superintendent, is usually adopted. It will be readily seen that the board in its purchase of books is bound to no publishing house big or little. I have not been a member of the book committee for years. On the question of text books, as to everything else relating to the schools, I always exercise common sense and sound judgment.

The statements made, I do not care by whom, that I in any manner run the school board or try to do so in the interest of any publishing house is absolutely false and are no doubt made through ignorance or maliciousness, perhaps both. But as the exact truth was in easy reach there was no need to peddle false-hoods, that would indicate that either the School Board or myself were doing things which no good School Board or director would do.

Akin to this story is the beastly statement that I was paid for doing certain work for the board. True I did the work for the board by directions of the board. Under date of June 16th. 1909 (taken from the minutes,) 'Dr. M. J. Locke moved that D. F. Fortney prepare the papers for a special election of citizens of the borough for the purpose of voting as to giving the school board authority to borrow ample funds to complete the new building. Seconded by Johnson and carried."

Therefore by direction of the board I drew all papers relating to the special elections for the different loans, all contracts and agreements, made all bonds that were issued for the loans, and for the contractors. There were many of these.

Certified copies of most of these papers had to be made as well as copies of the minutes, statements to be filed with the clerk of the court. All this required much typewriting. This was paid for by the board, but not to me. It was not mine, nor was there ever an order drawn to me for any service rendered except as Treasurer of the board.

The law only prohibits any member of the board furnishing supplies to the board. It is the duty of all members of the board at all times to give all the knowledge, good sense, and sound judgment to all the questions which may come before the board. This I have always done, to the very best of my ability and with good results.

Respectfully,
D. F. FORTNEY.

Fruit Soils.

The relative value of limestone soil as compared with shaley and sandy soils for the purpose of fruit growing is often discussed. To an inquirer who writes asking whether limestone soil is best for growing peach and apple trees, H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa. gives the following instructions:

"Replying to your letter asking if I would advise the planting of peach and apple trees in limestone soil in the Lebanon Valley, and using the land for general truck purposes. I bev to say that I would recommend this for the apple and pear, but I fear it would be too fertile to grow peach trees with the best results.

"Limestone will produce a very rank peach tree that will probably give more of its strength and energy to growth and not enough to bearing, and will not give fruits of the best color. Limestone soil is the best soil for apples and pears, while sandy or shaley soil is best for peach. Also, another point depends upon the elevation. If it is somewhat low in the valley so that there is little ready air drainage, it would not be so good for the peach. If it is elevated so that the cold air would readily drain off in one direction or another, it would be better. To answer your question in full one should see the entire condition."

Basket Ball.

As the basket ball season approaches our Y. M. C. A club is fast getting into shape, a captain has been elected and Bellefonte will be represented by a team which will be a credit to our town. Negotiations are now on with the "Tyrone Big 5" and the prospects are at this writing very certain that Bellefonte will open the season with Tyrone on Tyrone's floor on Nov. 10th or 11th. and by so doing they must have Tyrone here for a return game which date will be about Nov. 24th. They must pay Tyrone a large guarantee and the boys taking such responsibility deserve the support of all. Come on Bellefonte, let us hear you say something. Show your sporting blood and help boost the team.

Is and From Man's Choice.

To be a man's choice and also come from a town of that name is the happy distinction of Miss Grace Lettie Clark, or rather Mrs. W. Howard Kinton, which is now her name, whose wedding was solemnized yesterday at Centre Hall. Mr. Kinton and his prospective bride earlier in the day secured a marriage license at the Court House. They gave their residence as Mann's Choice, Bedford County, Pa.

In peace patriotism really consists only in this—that every one sweeps before his own door, minds his own business, also learns his own lesson, that it may be well with him in his own house.—Goethe.

DIED AT 92 YEARS

Aged Mother of Judge Hall Succumbs at St. Marys; Former Centre Countian.

Mrs. Susan Geary Hall, mother of Judge Harry Alvin Hall and Senator J. K. P. Hall, died early Sunday morning, last, at St. Mary's Pa., aged 92 years and 9 days. She at one time lived in Centre County. For several days she had been in a critical condition, gradually sinking into death. Her health had been remarkably good up until a short time ago. On October 7th. she was as well as usual and celebrated her birthday anniversary, surrounded by her four surviving children and the wives of Judge Hall and his brother, the Senator. All of her children were at her bedside when she expired.

The "Lock Haven Express" published the following sketch of the deceased: Mrs. Hall was born at Hartleton, Union county, Pa., October 13, 1819, a daughter of John and Julian Geary. She came of Revolutionary stock, both of her grandfathers having participated in the great war for American Independence. When she was seven years old her parents removed to Nittany valley, in Centre County, where, in 1826, her father erected the large building known as Nittany Hall, an old landmark which is still standing, and from which the village surrounding it takes its name. On June 28, 1837, when but 18 years old, she was married at Hublersburg to Benjamin McDowell Hall. She resided there for sometime and afterwards in Milesburg, until 1855, when the family removed to Karthaus, Clearfield county, where they resided until 1867, when they removed to St. Marys, which was thereafter her home until the time of her death. She had seven children, all of whom were born in Centre county, except the youngest, who was born at Karthaus. They were the Honorable John G. Hall, a noted railroad contractor and corporation lawyer, and at one time senator from this district, who died at Liverpool, England, in 1889; Dr. William E. Hall, a noted physician of Renovo, who died at Newport News, Va., in 1890; Hon. J. K. P. Hall, now senator from this district, and formerly a member of Congress; Mrs. B. E. Wellendorf and Miss Mary E. Hall, both of whom resided with her at the time of her death; B. Frank Hall, who died in Philadelphia in 1909, and Hon. Harry Alvan Hall, formerly senator from this district, afterwards United States Attorney and now our president judge. She is also survived by nine grand-children and four great grand-children and by one brother, the venerable W. C. Geary, Esq., of Ridgway, Pa.

Mrs. Emma C. Chase Dead.

Mrs. Emma C. Chase, widow of the late William Chase, well known in women's lodge circles in Altoona, died at the hospital in that city at 6:55 o'clock Sunday morning of pneumonia. She was taken ill several weeks ago and on Saturday was admitted to the institution in the hope of prolonging life. She grew worse and at the hour named above she passed away. Deceased was born at Greenwood Furnace, Huntingdon county, on April 27, 1859, being at the time of death aged 52 years, 5 months and 25 days. She had been a resident of that city for a number of years and was prominently identified with several of the women's lodges, being a member of Fidelity assembly No. 4, Degree of Naomi, Knights of the Mystic Chain; Dames of Malta; Powhatan council, Degree of Pocahontas, Camp, 49, auxiliary to Patriotic Order Sons of America. She was a member of the Chestnut Avenue Methodist Episcopal church and is survived by the following: One daughter and son, Mrs. May Harbaugh and Roy Chase, of Altoona; a step-daughter and a stepson, William Chase, of Altoona, and Mrs. Laura Eckles, of McKeesport; her father, William Hardy, of Tyrone, and two sisters and three brothers: Mrs. William Fulton, of Milesburg; Mrs. Lillian Kelly, of Lakemont Terrace; Jacob and Samuel Hardy, of Tyrone, and James Hardy, of Union Furnace. The funeral took place from her late home Wednesday afternoon, services conducted at the home at 3 o'clock. Interment in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Moths in Wheat.

At this season much damage is done to wheat and other grain crops both in the mow and bin by insects, chief among which is the Angoumois grain moth. To a correspondent who has suffered from the ravages of moths in wheat, Prof. H. A. Surface. Economic Zoologist of the State Department of Agriculture, writes as follows:

"It is very important for you to thresh your wheat just as soon as possible. The longer you let it remain in the straw the longer will the weevil and moth remain in it. Thresh the wheat and put it into barrels, boxes, or bins, and then pour over it one pound of carbon bisulfide for each one hundred bushels of wheat, and cover it with wet blankets or carpets, and let it remain a day to fumigate, and the fume will kill the pests.

"We have published in previous Bulletins and News Letters to the effect that for the weevil and moth the threshing should be done soon.

"Your communication stating that they are worse around the outer edge of the mow proves just what we have said about it. They will gradually work farther and farther into the mow, and then treatment will be useless, if you do not thresh it and save that which you have."

CAMERA AIDS SPORT

Golf, Rowing and Track Athletics are Helped by Photography.

As a help for the man who would develop his skill in some particular line of sport the camera is in growing favor, says the New York Sun. In fact this use of the camera is resorted to more than one would think, and its possibilities are far reaching.

Not long ago a man who wanted to perfect his golf invited a friend who was proficient in the game to accompany him to the links and give him some points.

"All right, I'm with you," said his friend, "but in addition to my clubs I'm going to bring my camera."

When they reached the links the man who wanted to improve his golf got out his sticks, while his friend unslung his camera. He took pictures of the golfer as they went around and after these had been developed he gave him a little lecture on them. The pictures showed the golfer many of his mistakes which he hadn't been able to grasp before and resulted in an improvement of his game

One of the first persons to appreciate the possibilities of this use of the camera was Coach Courtney of Cornell. He conceived the idea some years ago of taking careful snapshots of the crew in the early stages of making them into oarsmen in which he has become famous. These pictures enables him to point out to each individual oarsman his defects, and the members of the crew were thus able to see themselves just as they appeared to their trainer. Now the camera is a regular part of crew work at Cornell. Other crews too have adopted it.

A conspicuous instance of the value of the camera in developing an athlete was afforded not long ago in the case of a Harvard runner. This man was very desirous of making his track team and going out for records and he decided to put in his summer training. He selected Maine to do this, but the lack of an experienced trainer embarrassed him. The best trainer he knew of was in the South. The camera solved the problem.

A friend was found to take careful pictures of his manner of starting and other elements of his track work. These snapshots were sent off to the trainer in the South and after the trainer had studied the pictures he was able to write out instructions for the man in Maine to follow in order to correct the different faults disclosed by the pictures.

This long distance training by means of a camera resulted in his making a track record the next season which astonished his friends. Since then a lot of track athletes have followed the same plan and the camera is said to be in pretty general use with the Harvard track team.

Home Teams Again Win.

State College on Saturday, last, defeated the Villanova football eleven, 18—0. The game was played on Beaver Field, at State College. State's hardest game of the season will be played on Saturday, next, when she lines up against the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia. The University defeated Villanova 22-0. State rooters are hopeful that this is the year which will witness a victory over the University. A large number of students will go to Philadelphia for the game, making the trip down and back in a special train. The Bellefonte Academy on Saturday added another scalp to its belt, its latest victory being over the strong Dickinson Seminary team, from Williamsport. The game was interesting from start to finish. The two teams were well matched, the Academy winning out by its better knowledge of football. The visiting team made its only score on a blocked kick. The final score was 20—5.

"I am all right now, thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy."

The same relief is ready for you. Are you sure you do not need it? If Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy helped Charles Holmes, why won't it help you?

"I was troubled with heart disease, and after reading about Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, I got a bottle. Before I got the Heart Remedy I had to sit up most of the night, and felt very bad at my stomach. Whatever I would eat made me feel worse, and my heart beat very fast. But thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, I am all right now. I eat good, sleep good, and feel like a new man, although I am almost 68 years old. I have been a soldier in the late war of the rebellion, and was badly wounded." CHARLES HOLMES, Private Co. Mrs. Harvey Vonada Dead.

Mrs. Harvey Vonada, of Georges valley, died at her late home there early Sunday morning, last, aged about 50 years. She was a member of the Lutheran church and was well known to a large circle of friends and by all was held in high regard. Surviving are her husband, two sons, John and Ammon, and one daughter who resides in Altoona. Several brothers also survive. Funeral services were held today at 9 o'clock, interment being made in the Georges valley cemetery, Rev. F. W. Barry officiating.

"Old Saddlebags."

"Old Saddlebags, by an Itinerant," will be the subject at the Methodist Episcopal church this (Thursday) evening, it being the last of the "Seven Evenings with Our Young People," which have proved so interesting, entertaining and instructive to the people of Bellefonte. As has already been explained in "The Republican," these meetings and addresses are primarily arranged and given for the profit and pleasure of young people. All others, however, are cordially invited to attend. Tonight's lecture will have to do chiefly with the amusing incidents in the life of a Methodist minister. It will be worth hearing.

A Cross (X) marked in the square at the right of the word "NO," indicates a vote AGAINST the Amendment

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION No. 1

SHALL SECTION EIGHT OF ARTICLE NINE OF THE CONSTITUTION BE AMENDED SO AS TO READ AS FOLLOWS?

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted: Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION No. 2

SHALL SECTION SIX OF ARTICLE FIVE OF THE CONSTITUTION BE AMENDED SO AS TO READ AS FOLLOWS?

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

YES
NO

Notice is hereby given, that every person, excepting Justice of the Peace, who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the Government of the United States or of this State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise a subordinate officer or agent who is or shall be employed under the Legislative, Executive or Judiciary department of this State, or of the United States, or of any city or incorporated district, and also that every member of Congress and of the State Legislature, and of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district is, by law, incapable of holding or exercising at the same time the office or appointment of judge, inspector or clerk of any election of this Commonwealth, and that no inspector, judge or other officer of any such elections, shall be eligible to any office to be then voted for, except that of an election officer.

Under the law of the Commonwealth for holding elections, the polls shall be opened at 7 o'clock A. M. and closed at 7 o'clock P. M.

Given under my hand and seal at my office in Bellefonte, this 21st day of October, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and eleven, and in the one hundred and thirty-sixth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

STATE'S WARFARE AGAINST DISEASE

Remarkable Record of Pennsylvania's Life Saving Service.

DECREASE IN DEATH RATE

Liberal Appropriations For Extension of Health Department's Work and Support by Tener Administration.

Pennsylvania is proud of her department of health. And she may well be, for no governmental agency could give back to the people a larger return for the taxpayer's money invested than has State Health Commissioner Dixon's organized "standing army of health," as the well equipped fighting force of sanitary workers has been aptly described.

Created by broad, comprehensive health laws during the administration of Governor Pennypacker, fostered and strengthened by liberal appropriations and broadened with the responsibility of a state-wide campaign against tuberculosis under Governor Stuart, the department of health received the hearty support of Governor Tener and the first legislature in his administration. Today, after six years of existence, it is the people's powerful arm of protection, and as such it has won their trust and confidence and cooperation.

Strong and powerful as is this public health arm of the state government service, it has a very human side. Indeed, as Dr. Dixon frequently remarks, the backbone of his department's entire campaign is the friendly working relation in which his health army stands to the people, not as a mere sanitary policeman, but as a helpful friend and adviser. This is the position the state health department aims to assume, teaching and helping along the way to better and happier conditions of living.

Mountain Home For Sufferers.

In no other division of its work is the department of health closer to the people than in the conduct of the state campaign against tuberculosis, nor is any other health work showing more encouraging results. At Mont Alto, where the state has built a model village for tuberculosis, 5531 patients had been treated from June 1, 1907, to June 30, 1911. Here in the pure mountain air and pine-laden breezes hundreds of poor sufferers have won back life and health. Many more have been so greatly benefitted as to be able to return to their homes and assist their families. Still others, in whom the disease had advanced too far, have been made comfortable and provided with a mountain home where they would not be a source of danger to their own people.

Recently, when the state's tuberculosis exhibit was in Pittsburg, visitors noticed a large, husky fellow pointing out the features of a model Mont Alto building to visitors. Upon inquiry it was found that the young man was a former Mont Alto patient. The joy of life and restored health shone in his face. He was only a type of many who have won the fight under the state's care. These persons, with health and strength restored, go back to their home districts as missionaries to teach the lessons of prevention. To follow up these cases wherever they go and see that they take proper care of themselves and others is an important feature of the state government's organized work. The state has been particularly active in caring for advanced cases, the records showing that the greatest number of cases treated at Mont Alto went there with the disease far developed.

New Sanitarium at Cresson.

"The department of health is today fighting tuberculosis," says Dr. Dixon, "with the end in view of ultimately wiping out the disease, of using every dollar of the taxpayer's money to the best advantage, and at the same time showing a wise humanitarianism in the care provided for all classes of cases, the incipient, the moderately advanced and those for whom nothing can be done except to make their closing hours as comfortable as possible."

Protected by the forests from the winter winds, but enjoying the full benefits of the high altitude, the new state sanitorium for tuberculosis at Cresson is being constructed by the department of health on the property given the commonwealth by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. It is so planned that four wings may be constructed, one at a time as needed, utilizing the same central building. Each wing or ward will accommodate 160 patients, giving a total capacity of 640 for the finally completed institution.

The first story of the structure is of sandstone found on the property. The second story is of asbestos boards timbered, and the roof will be of asbestos shingles. The layout permits of the maximum amount of sunlight, with the wards so arranged as to accommodate the varying demand of advanced and incipient cases. The central building will provide a dining room, reception and examining rooms on the first floor, and apartments for the doctors, nurses and help on the second floor.

A Retreat In Berks County.

Connecting the east and west wards with the central building are corridors that have enclosed basements through which the patients can walk to the dining room in stormy weather, and a first floor to be used for the open air treatment. Here the patients may sit in rest chairs and enjoy the sunshine, and thus is overcome the necessity of porches that would bar the sun from the patient's rooms. Into this sun corridor also the patient's bed can be wheeled. To economize by using the same foundation and roof for as much as possible, a second floor of each connecting corridor will accommodate twenty beds for hospital cases.

The sanatorium site, about 2400 feet above the sea level, is sufficiently far from all industries to have a pure air for the patients. The summers are cool and the winters long and unbroken.

At Hamburg, in Berks county, a site has been purchased for an eastern sanatorium, which will be built along the same lines as the one at Cresson. The site selected commands a pleasing view of wooded mountains, broken into gaps and peaks, with the Schuylkill river winding in the valley to the west. Far enough away to avoid all objection of noise and smoke, but near enough to relieve a sense of lonesomeness, the Schuylkill valley branches of the Pennsylvania and Reading railroads are seen. The quaint town of Hamburg nestles in the valley below, bordered by stretches of farm lands with restful pastoral scenes. At these three state institutions, Mont Alto, Cresson and Hamburg, the poor will receive the ideal treatment for tuberculosis.

Dispensaries Care For Thousands.

Hand in hand with the sanatorium work goes the dispensary treatment. At 115 places in Pennsylvania the state department of health has a free tuberculosis dispensary, in charge of a trained physician, with necessary assistants and visiting nurses. Some idea of the amount of work being done by these dispensaries may be gathered from the fact that from July, 1907, to July, 1911, 41,792 tuberculosis sufferers had been examined and treated and regularly visited at their homes by the state's efficient corps of trained nurses.

The educational and sociological work alone that is being done by the state from these dispensaries to prevent the spread of disease and to better the conditions of living among the poor, would amply justify all the money Pennsylvania has appropriated to its tuberculosis campaign. And in connection with this work of educating the people, opportunity should not be lost to refer to the splendid aid given by the public press in general, through which it has been possible from day to day and week to week to talk over these problems of better health and better living conditions with the home group around every fireside in the state.

When the dispensaries were started it was realized that if they were to be fully successful the department would first of all have to locate the indigent cases. It, therefore, solicited and received the hearty co-operation of civic clubs, churches, organized charity associations, labor unions and the large employers of labor throughout the state. This co-operation has always continued, and the department appreciates its value.

Nurses In the Homes.

When an applicant for dispensary treatment has been carefully examined by the physician in charge, and full information as to the history of the case, environment, occupation, etc., noted, he is carefully instructed as to what he must do to improve his own health and the absolute necessity of taking certain precautions to avoid infecting others. He is supplied with sputum cups and paper napkins, and if he is too poor to get regularly the proper nourishment, this is supplied to him in the form of milk and oil, the latter having proven a most efficient food.

A day or so after the new patient has been to the dispensary a trained nurse calls at the home. The squalor and disease breeding conditions that the nurse so frequently finds present a task that would seem impossible. But the nurse is all courage. Bright and cheerful and a model of cleanliness herself, she is not afraid to roll up her sleeves and set the pace for getting the house in order. Windows are thrown open and God's glorious sunshine is allowed to come in and run riot through the rooms, killing as nothing else can do so well the lurking germs of disease. What a difference is made in that home. The tuberculosis patient is thoroughly instructed in the precautions he must observe and the health rules he must follow, and each member of the family is similarly taught how to avoid infection. The patient himself is especially advised to sleep with windows wide open or, better still, to sleep out of doors. Helpful suggestions are offered as to how sleeping quarters can be made out of back porches, for instance, at a nominal expense. Then the nurse makes a quick study of the other conditions in the home. Perhaps she notices that the children are anaemic, poorly nourished and improperly clad, not necessarily because the family is destitute, but because the little income that exists is not being put to best advantage. Here is an opportunity to teach the mother how both in selecting and cooking the food the greatest possible nutrition can be secured for the least amount of money.

Saving of Child Life.

So it is that nurses are going to the homes of the poor throughout Pennsylvania, letting in the sunlight, teaching the life-giving principles of fresh air and proper food, changing filth and disorder to cleanliness and neatness, making these people their friends and thus making them understand that the state is their friend. Can there possibly be any other result than that these people should be lifted up, or, better still, that they should be incited to climb up to a higher plane of living and morality. Thus they become better citizens, better producers, and the commonwealth is so much the healthier, wealthier and happier thereby.

In October, 1905, Health Commissioner Dixon inaugurated free distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin by the state. Up to December, 1910, 27,318 cases of this dread disease, mostly little children, were treated for cure with the life-saving serum. From statistics it is gathered that without anti-toxin forty-two out of every one hundred of these children probably would have died, but thanks to the state's beneficence only 2324 died. Free anti-toxin was also given for immunization purposes in 20,294 cases, mostly children who had been in contact with the disease. All but 335 of these were absolutely protected against diphtheria. The actual saving of child life resulting from the state's free distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin in these five years was in cold figures 9152 lives.

Pollution of Water Supply.

The battle for pure water supplies has been waged in Pennsylvania with unparalleled success. In 1905, when the present purity of water law was enacted the streams of the state from one end to the other were open sewers for municipalities large and small and were poisoned by the individual property owner without any regard whatever for the neighbors down stream. Up to Aug. 1, 1911, private sources of stream pollution to the number of 34,481 had been abated upon formal notice from the department, and thousands more have been stopped through the moral influence of this work.

Eighty-nine modern sewage disposal plants have been either built or are in process of construction as approved by the state. Two hundred and eighty-four municipalities and private sewerage corporations are building comprehensive sewerage systems in accordance with approved plans for sewage treatment works. Eighty-six modern water filtration plants have been approved by the state and are either built or being erected.

And what of typhoid fever, in view of the work for pure water?

In 1906, out of every 100,000 persons in Pennsylvania, 56.5 died of typhoid fever; in 1907, 50.3; in 1908, 34.4; in 1910, 24.5. There are now living more than 2400 persons who, had the death rate of 1906 prevailed in 1910, would have died from typhoid.

Results of Health Campaign.

Consider the economic value to the state of such a saving of life. The most conservative economists place the average value of such a life at $2000. This means that the reduction in the death rate from typhoid fever alone saved the commonwealth $7,200,000. No account is taken in this estimate of the untold suffering and anguish from which thousands of homes were saved.

Thousands of physicians throughout Pennsylvania are being constantly aided in diagnosing their cases by the examinations of pathological specimens sent by them to the state department of health laboratories. Important research work is being done by the state in these laboratories, work that is adding to the world's knowledge of preventative medicine.

More than once in the past few years the federal government has held up as a model Pennsylvania's system for the collection of vital statistics, that phase of work that lies at the foundation of all successful sanitation.

All this has shown striking results. In 1906 the death rate in Pennsylvania per 1000 of population was 16.5; in 1908 it had dropped to 15.7, and in 1910 to 15.6. Bearing in mind Pennsylvania's 7,655,000 population, this decreased death rate, small as it appears on its face, means in reality a tremendous saving of human lives. Had the death rate of 1906 prevailed in 1908, the latter year would have witnessed the death of 5914 more people than died. Had this same rate applied in 1910, instead of the decreased percentage recorded by the department of health, 6898 men, women and children now living and presumably in good health and spirits, would have died.

Pennsylvania is reaping the benefits of the state government's health campaign. This work will be continued, ans as more and more the people realize its blessings, will be attended by even greater results.

Footwear Extravagance.

You cannot economize on your feet this season when they are so much in evidence, and, therefore every woman will have to take up the two subjects together—the kind of suit she buys and the kind of shoes she will get to go with the suit.

Danger of Dieting.

Many women have gone beyond nature's limit in the effort to diet and get fashionably slim. Do not try to be fashionable in your eating. There is nothing to be ashamed of in a good appetite, and if your food fails to assimilate and nourish you know it all too soon. Undernourishment is one of the crying evils just now, and many women are ruining their health while they pride themselves on their science in eating.

There is just as much danger on the other side of the line—only fewer are on that side just now, at least women who are not greedy as a sex. Inordinate fondness for food means ruin to complexion, even to refinement of expression, besides it is costly these days of soaring prices.

Few of us have the digestive apparatus of the last hero of the late David Graham Philips and wouldn't have the money to pay for "enormous meals" of richest food and drink even if we had. It would be well, though, for many an American if there were more chefs like the famous Parisian one just died, who refused to serve a meal that would not agree with his patrons.

Overeating is just as dangerous as undereating. Why do either? A man or woman of ordinary intelligence should be able to tell what and how much he or she can eat and a few weeks' study on food values will be all that is needed.

Here and There.

Miss Emily Natt gave a small luncheon on Saturday of last week.

Miss Elizabeth Blanchard was a visitor in Philadelphia this week.

Mrs. Louisa V. Harris entertained at dinner on Monday evening.

Your toilet table to be complete should have "Cydonine" upon it.

Mrs. Edward Doll and two children, of Altoona, were week-end visitors in Bellefonte.

William Hartsock, who is employed in the Juniata shops, was an over-Sunday visitor with Bellefonte friends.

Miss Sarah Caldwell departed today for Sparrowspoint, Maryland, for a visit of two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Phil McGinley.

William McFarland, who is getting along nicely in the electrical world, spent Sunday in Bellefonte, returning to his duties on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Musser and little son spent Sunday in Bellefonte with Mr. Musser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Musser, on Lamb Street.

William Allison, of New York, who is visiting his father W. M. Allison, at Spring Mills, spent Sunday in Bellefonte at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Allison.

W. P. Humes departed on Tuesday for Warren, where as an elder of the Bellefonte Presbyterian church he attended the State Presbytery.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray Hartsock, of Altoona, spent Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hartsock, of Buffalo Run.

Mrs. Jennie Parsons, who visited the past three weeks with Miss Myra Humes, departed on Friday of last week for Pittsburg, where she will spend the winter.

After an enjoyable visit of ten days at the home of his mother, Mrs. A. O. Furst, on West Linn Street, Walter Furst on Monday returned to his duties in New Haven, Conn.

Miss Grace Lyon, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lyon, of Penn Street, departed yesterday for Cleveland, Ohio, where she enters the Lakeside hospital to become a nurse in training.

Miss Verna Chambers, who is a student at the Lock Haven State Normal School, entertained several of her school friends over Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Chambers, at Clarence.

Miss Abbie Cook, who is a trained nurse and who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Cook, is seriously ill from typhoid fever in a hospital in Kansas. Her brother, Harris, who is located at Altoona, departed for Kansas on Sunday night.

There will be no services held in the Reformed church next Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Schmidt, leaves this week for Philadelphia, to attend the 165th annual sessions of the Eastern Synod of the Reformed Church, to which body he is a delegate.

Blaine Port on Saturday returned home from Philadelphia where he had been for a month or more and where he recently underwent a second operation for appendicitis. He apparently is in splendid health, which is good news to his many friends.

Squire W. H. Musser was in Philadelphia on Friday of last week attending the funeral of his son, the late C. Dale Musser, whose sad death was noted in "The Republican" last week. Others attending the funeral from here were Horace Musser, a brother of the deceased, and John M. Bullock.

The annual revival services will begin in the Bellefonte United Evangelical church next Sunday. Beginning with November 2 and continuing for one week Rev. H. A. Benfer will preach the Word. Mr. Benfer is Presiding Elder of the Center District and is one of the foremost preachers of the Central Penna. Conference. The members and friends of this church will be delighted to learn of the opportunity to hear him.

A number of distinguished educators spent several hours in Bellefonte on Friday morning of last week, enroute to State College, where they attended the "Round Table Conference" of principals and superintendents of schools in central Penusylvania. While here they visited the new High School Building under the guidance of Professor Jonas E. Wagner, who later accompanied them to State College. In the party were County Superintendent McCloskey and Superintendent Ling, of Lock Haven; Superintendent Mincemeyer, of Renovo; Mr. Hougland, of Westport; Mr. Miller, of South Renovo; Mr. Harvey and Prof. C. D. Koch, of Harrisburg; Superintendent Brooks, of Lewistown, and Mr. Eisenhart, principal of the schools at Morrisdale.

It will be gratifying to the many friends of Mrs. Carrie Bilger, wife of W. M. Bilger, to learn that she is recovering nicely and that she expects to be strong enough to return home in the next two or three weeks. Mrs. Bilger underwent an operation about eight weeks ago in the University hospital in Philadelphia. She was recovering rapidly following the operation and one afternoon was wheeled out in a chair for a little fresh air. As the nurse in charge was wheeling the chair back into the hospital she was called to assist one of the physicians on another case. Expecting to be gone but a minute or two, the nurse obeyed the summons of the physician and left Mrs. Bilger in the rolling chair outside the hospital. The nurse was, however, detained quite a while and it so happened that nobody was within call of Mrs. Bilger, who caught a heavy cold and suffered severe chills. Her cold developed into pneumonia and on Saturday her condition was such that her husband was telegraphed for. Mr. Bilger had but a few minutes time to catch the evening train but he went to Philadelphia that night and remained until Tuesday. He was much relieved to find that his wife's condition had taken a turn for the better and that the hospital physicians were confident that she would soon be restored to health. During her long illness her many friends here have been anxiously waiting until she might be able to return home, and now there is every reason to believe that this will be possible in the next two or three weeks.

"Cydonine" 25c the bottle at Greens.

William Mitterling, of Centre Hall, transacted business in town yesterday.

Mrs. A. C. Bolton, of Wheeling, West Virginia, is visiting with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Samuel Donachy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gingher are visiting with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton, on Penn Street.

Mrs. Mary Miller this week returned to her home in Lena, Illinois, after a most enjoyable visit of six months with Centre County friends.

Miss Mame Woods, of Bellefonte, was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Lydia E. Shulte and Robert Gifford Lytle, of Tyrone, on Wednesday evening of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hinman Gibson and little daughter, Margaret, of Rutherford, N. J., are visiting at the home of Mrs. Gibson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cook, on West Linn Street.

County Superintendent of Schools D. O. Etters, of State College, was in town this week shaping up his plans for the holding of the annual teachers' institute, which is scheduled this year for the week beinning November, 13.

Mrs. Jennie R. Hastings and daughter, Miss Sarah, expect to sail for Europe on November 21, planning to be gone until June of next year. Before going abroad they will spend some time with the Hickoks, in Harrisburg, for which city Miss Sarah departed this week.

Mrs. Andrew Morrison, of Williamsport, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mabel Morrison, and also Miss Lillian Ort, both of New York, have been enjoying a visit with friends in and about Bellefonte. Mrs. Morrison at one time resided here.

Rev. Fred W. Barry, until recently pastor of the Bellefonte Lutheran church, has purchased Sheriff Hurley's fine team of grays and will use the same in covering his new charge at Centre Hall. There are several churches in Mr. Barry's new charge and Sheriff Hurley's splendid team will make the traveling from one point to another a comparatively easy matter.

H. P. Shaeffer, formerly a clerk in the John Olewine hardward store, this week opened a hardware store in the room in Allegheny Street until recently occupied by Paul Sheffer's grocery store. Mr. Shaeffer is a young, energetic business man and expects by giving his establishment his personal and undivided attention to build up a large and profitable trade.

William S. Furst, Esq., of Philadelphia, has been spending several months in Alaska. Word received from him during the last few days is to the effect that he expects to return in the next few weeks. There is but one more boat from Alaska before winter sets in. Should Mr. Furst by any mishap fail to board this boat he will have the unhappy experience of spending the winter in Alaska

The ladies of the Guild connected with St. John's Episcopal church intend holding a bazaar on November 3rd and 4th in the Parish House and will have for sale fancy goods, dolls, home-made candies, aprons ice cream and home-made cakes. In the delicatassen store connected with it will be found all sorts of good things such as "mother used to make," and the grab-bag will show the children they have not been forgotten.

The Bellefonte Academy will play the strong Lock Haven State Normal football eleven on Hughes Field on Saturday afternoon, next, the game being scheduled for 3 o'clock. This should be a fast and exciting game. Everybody who witnessed last Saturday's game was more than pleased. The Academy boys appreciated the large attendance and hope that the crowd on hand to see the game with the Lock Haven Normal will be equally encouraging. The admission will be 25 cents.

Following upon the same line of work suggested by Mr. J. Horace McFarland, will be the illustrated lecture in the Auditorium of the new High School Building, on Friday night, by Dr. Hugh Baker, of State College. Dr. Baker, as we all know, is the head of the Forestry School, and he has kindly offered to give us some practical suggestions upon the care of our trees and in substituting new ones, will tell us of various kinds that are more beautiful and live much longer than the prevailing soft maple. Good, big, healthy trees are no harder nor more expensive to plant than poor ones.

Special Foot Ball Train.

Account of the Penn—State foot ball game Saturday, October, 28th, a special train of ten coaches from State College to Philadelphia will be run on Friday, leaving State College at 11.45 A. M. passing through Bellefonte at 12.25 via Bellefonte Central R. R., Central R. R. of Pa. and Philadelphia & Reading Ry., arriving at Philadelphia at 6.45 that evening in time for the theatre. Returning this train will leave Philadelphia Sunday evening and reach Bellefonte about 8.00 A. M. Monday.

Fare for the round trip from State College and Bellefonte $6.75, and tickets must be purchased in advance from Bellefonte Central offices either at Bellefonte or State College. Through Pullman sleeping cars on return train from Philadelphia.

"A Pair of Country Kids."

Did you ever sit on a mossy bank and look at the sun-kissed brook as it merrily dances in glee around the protruding pebbles and feel glad that you were alive? Well, that is the same sensation that you experience when you go and see "A Pair of Country Kids" at Garman's Opera House next Monday evening, Oct. 30. It is a laughing, bubbling pure heart and home story. When the curtain drops on the last act you feel as though you had been refreshed by a drink of good cool spring water. The Kids are full of fun and these two characters alone insure a good performance. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

"Harmony Rose Glycerine soap" at 10c the cake should be upon every lady's wash stand.

WOMEN ISSUE STATEMENT

Make Appeal to Voters in Behalf of Mrs. Brouse and Mrs. Gilmour.

The Women's Club this week issued the following statement to the voters of Bellefonte:

"The Women's Club has been much gratified with the cordial support given by the voters of the town to the efforts to place two women on the Public School Board. The undertaking was attempted because of the belief that it would prove a benefit to the schools, and the candidates were chosen after a careful consideration of the qualities and requirements which would be drawn upon in the fulfillment of their duties. The women of Bellefonte are aware that the public school system in Pennsylvania is far behind what has been achieved in other states, and that, at the present there seems to be a widespread movement to rectify this by interesting women in the effort to raise the standard of our schools as high as has been done in New York and some New England and Western States.

"It has been a great pleasure to find that so many men of our town agree with this and have given it their vote at the primary. Mrs. Brouse was nominated by both the Republican and Democratic parties and Mrs. Gilmour by the Republican party, having received also a good share of Democratic votes.

"Both women have been affiliated with the public schools most of their lives. They have both been pupils of the schools. Both of them have sent their children to them and Mrs. Gilmour taught in the public schools for eight years with the splendid record of never having missed but one and a half days and that not because of illness. They are conscientious, prompt and intelligent. They will avail themselves of the information concerning the needs and advancement in the public school system. They will profit by such advice as the following: 'Make haste slowly, especially at first. Do not criticise hastily conditions which seem to be wrong, but push on the good things with all speed. Do not pull the old customs down until ready to replace them with better, remembering always that educational advance is made by inches, not in leaps and bounds, for the whole community must consent to its progress.'

"Mrs. Brouse's election is assured, but, if one woman is good, two women are better. It will be much more agreeable all around and their point of view will be felt, whereas one woman can effect little. Mrs. Gilmour was well supported by the Republicans at the primaries but she is opposed on the Democratic ticket by Mr. Louis Gettig, a man whom we should have been glad to see on the board, but not instead of Mrs. Gilmour.

"We hope that those voters who agree that women can help on the board will appreciate the advantage there will be in having two women and shall vote for both Mrs. Brouse and Mrs. Gilmour on the 7th of November."

YOUNG GIRL'S DEATH

Mary Rosella Dale Passes Away in Hospital Following Operation.

A sad death was that of Mary Rosella Dale, the sweet and bright young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Dale, of near Lemont, who passed away in the Bellefonte hospital on Saturday morning, last, at 5.30 o'clock. For a week or more the young girl had been hovering between life and death, her anxious parents remaining constantly at her bedside and the attending physicians doing everything in their power to bring her back to health. Her illness was so sudden that it was hard for her many friends to fully realize that she was in such a critical condition. Once they learned of the slight chance she had to recover there was nothing for them to do but to hope and pray for the best. Little by little she drifted nearer and nearer to death and early Saturday morning her eyes were closed in never-ending sleep.

The young girl was but 13 years old on the 13th of August, last, and was apparently in the very best of health and strength until two weeks prior to her untimely death. About that time she was seized with what was at first thought to be stomach trouble. When physicians were summoned they advised her immediate removal to the Bellefonte hospital, where an operation was at once performed for appendicitis. For some days following the operation she appeared to be recovering nicely, and then came a sudden turn for the worse. Peritonitis developed and the deadly poison spread through her system. For several days before she passed away it was feared that she could not survive, but nothing was spared to save the faint spark of life that remained. With the grief-stricken parents hovering over her the little girl passed into the world where her sufferings are ended and where all is sunshine and happiness.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, interment being made in the Boalsburg cemetery, Rev. J. I. Stonecypher officiating. Surviving to mourn the loss of one who was loved so well are the parents and three brothers and little sisters.

Mr. James I. Thompson

Agent for Royal Union Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Des Moines, Iowa.

MY DEAR SIR:

I am indeed very grateful to you for your kindness in bringing to me this day the Royal Union Co's check for 1009.34 being in full payment of policy 31940 held by my late husband Harry Gates. I am also very much indebted to you for your persistency in getting my husband to take out this policy only two years ago. It was only by your earnest support that he made application. I want you to express to the Royal Union Co. my sincere thanks for their promptness in sending me this check (dated Sept. 2nd.) for the amount of my husband's policy.

Wishing you and the Royal Union the greatest success and again thanking you most sincerely. I remain very sincerely yours.

MAGARET EVERHART GATES.
